

Your gift will help the Foundation conduct 4-day intensive teacher seminars.

Your gift counts!

Please consider a year-end gift to The John Marshall Foundation.

The educational experience the Foundation provides to today's teachers and students doesn't just happen—and it depends on more than grant and endowment income.

Our success and effectiveness depends on your generosity, too.

Your gift—however much you can give—helps provide financial support for the resources, technology, and programs that permit the Foundation to execute its intensive four-day teacher seminars twice a year and the recently unveiled “Justice in the Classroom” program for high school students here in Virginia. We hope to expand into other states next year. It also helps support historic John Marshall sites, such as the historic John Marshall House in Richmond.

When you give, you can count on The Foundation to put your generosity to work right away on behalf of our teachers and students..

Please consider making your tax deductible gift online now—or by December 31. Every gift counts—and every gift makes a difference.

Thank you for your generosity to The John Marshall Foundation.

If you have already made a gift to The Foundation this fiscal year—thank you.

Many companies will match their employees' gifts. Please check with your human resources department to see if your company does so.
